

Prenatal

Enigma Factsheet · Prenatal

Prenatal is a technique developed by the Dutch astrologer Eg Sneek. This technique uses positions from the moment of conception. These are projected onto the life of the person born.

Time Key

Eg Sneek uses a period of 10 sidereal months and compares this period to the first 70 years after birth. If a person lives beyond 70 years, you can extend the sidereal months. You simply continue counting, even if you are no longer within the period preceding birth.

Correcting

The moment of conception is unknown. It is therefore necessary in practice to correct this moment.

Such a correction is carried out by selecting an event that has already been entered — you can also create a new event — or by specifying a date and time. You then choose a moment from the prenatal period that is reasonably close in time and that matches the selected event in terms of interpretation. Enigma then calculates a new moment of conception based on this event and this prenatal moment.

Conjunctions and Eclipses

Conjunctions and eclipses are the most important. Eg Sneek indicates that these are used to find the most significant events. If desired, you can expand the aspects and choose other events: ingresses and changes between direct and retrograde.

The Moon is not selected by default, but this can be adjusted. For clarity, it is better to work with a limited selection.
